

Tomás Saraceno Aerosolar Journeys

£30.00

With his room-filling installations created at the interface of art, architecture and the natural sciences, Tomás Saraceno speculates on future forms of human coexistence.

As a qualified architect Saraceno's interests span across structural studies to biology to atmospheric physics.

This book is dedicated to his actual projects and accompanies them with numerous photographs, short introduction texts and scientific essays.

His works can be understood as ongoing research, which pursues – oriented on a multidisciplinary level – the idea of a 'feasible utopia'.

Published on the occasion of the exhibition, Tomás Saraceno: Aerosolar Journeys at Wilhelm-Hack-Museum, Ludwigshafen am Rhein (11 February – 30 April 2017), and Museum Haus Konstruktiv, Zurich (1 June – 3 September 2017).

English and German text.
