

REVUE (Special Issue 1997–2016)

This Is Not a Magazine

£22.00

REVUE is an artist's magazine (not a book) which subversively occupies a place between art and fashion.

It is created by artist Nicole Tran Ba Vang who parodies the stereotypes and prejudices of advertising and fashion, exploring the fantasies of a consumer society.

In the manner of Surrealist poet Joyce Mansour, she turns advertising and fashion magazines into her medium and revisits or 'reviews' aspects of popular culture through a dexterous game of manipulation.

REVUE invites us to explore the fantasies of a society of images and consumerism and to question the representations of popular culture appearances and the power of the media on our tastes, our values, our bodies and our minds.

Key Selling Points

- Nicole Tran Ba Vang lives and works in Paris. She first established herself in the French contemporary photography landscape. With a background in fashion, she plays with the forms widely accepted within the industry.
- Her work can be found in the following collections: Musée d'Art Moderne de Saint Etienne, Neuflyze Vie/ABN AMRO, Paris and Musée Louis Vuitton, Paris, amongst others.
