Thesaurus Scienta Lancastriae
Jack Aylward-Williams & Robert Williams

Thesaurus Scienta Lancastriae is a collaborative work between six-year-old Jack Aylward-Williams and his father Robert Williams.

In this book, Jack explains the world to his father, an artist and academic, who translates its cosmology to the reader.

This project uses Williamson’s Park in Lancaster as a microcosm of the world, encompassing disciplines of geology, botany, zoology, physics, arboriculture, anthropology and many others.
