£24.00

299 792 458 m/s is a magazine created in 2016 by Robert Kulisek and David Lieske in New York City. It's inaugural Issue, The American Issue brings together a large variety of contemporary photographers, stylists, artists and designers with a focus on a transatlantic network that heavily influences the current fashion discourse.

299 792 458 m/s was inspired by Sibylle, the only fashion publication in existence during the former German Democratic Republic (1956 – 1989).

As a meta-fashion magazine, Sibylle operated with minimal access to western designer clothes, and opened up historical possibilities into uncharted territories of fashion-photography.
