essays by Raymond Bellour, Hartmut Bitomsky, Marc Ries, Stephen Zepke

Cinema Like Never Before compiles artistic and analytical practices that expand thought on cinema and contribute to understanding film differently. For this, film images are processed in a certain way or arranged differently allowing them to offer information about themselves. The exhibition at Generali Foundation, Vienna, thematizes archetypes and recurring patterns in film history and examines the determinants and perception conditions of cinema. English and German text.
