Rem Koolhaas / Hans Ulrich Obrist The Conversation Series: 4

£7.5

Rem Koolhaas is the optimistic and bold theoretician of contemporary architecture.

In his talks with Hans-Ulrich Obrist he discusses his work in China – amongst others his spectacular and controversial concept for the headquarters of China Central Television in Beijing – and his designs for Prada shops, where consumption is staged like art.

This book looks at Koolhaas' role as counselor for the EU, as well as his views on architecture as metaphor and on the development of urbanism in the slipstream of globalisation.
