Euan Macdonald Selected Standards

£17

Euan Macdonald's Selected Standards is an artist's book that combines title pages from sheet music found in a second hand store in Los Angeles with drawings and aerial photographs of LA.

The represented songs are hits from jazz musicals from the 1940s and 1950s and they range in theme from zany and wistful, to melancholic and existential.

Some are well-known standards, while others are obscure. The song titles contain philosophical moments, familiar and peripheral experiences, some imagining a better world, or offering a fleeting chance to escape the one we're in.

When he first encountered the sheet music, Macdonald was intrigued by the narrative relationship that developed between the titles.

With the exception of an addition, the title pages are presented in the order in which they were originally found.

In the spirit of improvisation and free association, so closely linked with jazz, Macdonald paired each song with drawings made in his studio as well as with aerial photographs of Los Angeles.

Published with Emily Carr Institute Press, Vancouver and Städtische Galerie Waldkraiburg.
