Florian Pumhösl 6 7 8

£28

Florian Pumhösl's latest production focuses on abstract films and paintings and their interaction with the surrounding space.

6 7 8 is made up of three new pieces: In his picture cycle Diminution, Pumhösl is concerned with the possibilities of portraits, the representation of individual characteristics and profiles.

The film installation Expressive Rhythm refers to Alexander Rodchenko's painting of the same name from 1942/43.

Dance notations are the theme of the second film project Tract, an abstract animation.
