James Beckett Works of James Beckett with Constant Interjections by Frank Key

£29

In a spatially and conceptually complex arrangement of text, image and scale, this book is a multi-vocal account of the varied practice of James Beckett.

Beckett's work explores minor histories, many of which are concerned with industrial development and demise across Europe, a process of investigation which is as much physical as it is biographical.

The pages of this new monograph are littered with associative interjections from the archive of Frank Key's radio program Hooting Yard, as an irreverent running commentary.

These texts become marginal notes to, and poetic mirrors of, the contributions of the book's 11 other authors.
